COUZENS INVITES MELLON TO PUBLIC DEBATE ON TAX REDUCTION PROGRAM

Michigan Senator Shown to be One of Richest Men in the Country Paying Over $7,000,000 Income Tax in 1919.

Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, Jan. 12.—One of the wealthiest men in the country today, Senator Couzens, Republican, of Michigan, has challenged Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, to a public debate on the merits of the Mellon reduction program.

The challenge was issued by Senator Couzens, Republican, of Michigan, who in a letter to the secretary of the treasury admitted that he was one of the wealthiest men in the country, and that he paid an income tax of $7,000,000 in 1919.

Notwithstanding this, and the fact that he had paid an income tax of $7,000,000 in 1919, Senator Couzens today was the fourth in the country to challenge Mellon's plan to reduce the income tax on high incomes.

Paltz Trolley Company Loses

Its Fight to Prevent Elliott's Bus Line From Carrying School Children Under Contract.

Supreme Court Justice A. H. F. Seeger has just handed down a decision vacating a temporary injunction that had been granted against Harry Elliott, the owner of a bus line operating out of Highland, and Fred Wilklow, school trustee of district No. 5, and Mrs. J. Wells Weaver, trustee of district No. 7.

The New Paltz, Highland and Poughkeepsie trolley line obtained the restraining order barring out a contract he had made to carry the pupils to and from the school districts who had traveled on the trolley line.

Elliott for years conducted a stage line between Gardiner and Highland, and since the opening of the schools in September had carried the school children.

During December an official of the trolley company secured the temporary injunction and obtained an order to show cause why a permanent injunction should not be given to stop such transportation of the children by Elliott on the ground that such service was in competition with the trolley line.

Also that a certificate of necessity and convenience had not been obtained by the stage owner from the public service commission. On December 28 the argument was made before Justice Seeger and he now has vacated the temporary injunction granted Elliott the bus owner.

Benjamin E. Massler and Joseph A. Duffy of New York represented the trolley company; A. D. & A. W. Lent of Highland for Harry Elliott, defendant.

Under the caption, "Home Zoning in the City of Kingston," the Newburgh Daily News prints the following editorially:

"Mayor Block of Kingston suggests that the Common Council appoint some of the progressive citizens who would agree to undertake to solve the zoning problem at little or no cost to the city. Newburgh and other cities established zoning without outside help and without cost, and I see no reason why we cannot do the same. There is no reason unless it be the desire of Kingston, as it was of Poughkeepsie, uselessly to spend the people's money for a fancy survey. Though face to face with a million dollar budget and a colossal budget indebtedness, Poughkeepsie proceeds with expenditures as though its taxpayers could stand anything."

As a personal experience in this matter, I point out that during the ten years the Federal government has collected income taxes I have paid into the Federal treasury $8,257,212, nearly all of which has been surplus.

In 1920, based on 1919 income, I paid 65 per cent surtax, or a total of $7,229,161.75 to the Federal treasury.

This resulted entirely from a transfer of ownership of certain property I had and in no way had to do with whatever upon industry of the country.

"Had the present law been in force, I would have saved nearly $10 million dollars, and if your present proposal of a maximum of 25 per cent surtax had been law, I would have saved nearly four million dollars; so I do not see where the country gains by creating these enormous savings for those well able to pay."

"If your proposal is enacted into law, there will be a deluge of dividends out of industry to private individuals many of whom undoubtedly have adopted the plan that you so well know about, namely, that of dividing estates among members of the family so as to reduce the high bracket incomes and, following, of course, reduce the percentage of surtax."

Senator Couzens challenged Mr. Mellon's statement that billions of dollars are hidden away and stagnant in tax exempt securities. He declared that the wealth invested in this class of securities represented only eight per cent of the wealth in the American investment field, and the further asserted that it was all "working" because it was largely put into municipal enterprises and public improvements.

"You refer to the tax exempt securities with great frequency," continued Couzens, "and greatly overplay the effect they have on government revenue. The entire amount of outstanding tax exempt securities in relation to the total outstanding amount of corporate stocks and bonds of every kind is so small as to have an appearance on the whole of discussion as a tempest in a teapot."

In this connection I might add that such men as the late Mr. Rockefeller, who are quite familiar, as you point out, with the possibilities of the best industrial stocks, yet who

At the regular monthly meeting of the board of directors of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce Friday evening, final plans were made for the annual election and the annual membership meeting.

Ballots will be mailed to the membership of the Chamber early next week and the polls will close at 3 p. m. Friday, January 25. That same evening the newly elected directors will meet with the other directors whose terms did not expire and the officers for the ensuing year will be elected.

The annual membership meeting will be held on Monday, January 28th, at the Fair Street Reformed Church at 6:15 p. m. Ladies are invited to attend this meeting and at the conclusion a chicken dinner served by the ladies of the Fair Street Church at $1.25 a plate there will be reports on the work of the Chamber for the past year and an address by J. M. Griest, manager of the Retail Business Institute of Chicago, Ill. Splendid reports regarding Mr. Griest's ability as a speaker have been received here.

In addition to this there will be special musical numbers. All members and their friends are invited to attend this meeting.

In addition to arranging for the program for these meetings, the directors decided to call a meeting to which representatives from all welfare and charitable organizations should be invited, to discuss the advisability of creating a Community Chest for Kingston. The directors also instructed Secretary Coe to write Mayor Block asking that he appoint a committee to meet with the Zoning Committee of the Chamber of Commerce so that together they might create some plan whereby a zoning ordinance might be established in Kingston.

A letter from W. K. McCoy, superintendent of the Hudson River Division, New York Central Railroad, was read in which he explained that an investigation was being made to see if some better method of safeguarding the railroad crossings could not be devised. This letter was in response to a letter sent Mr. McCoy asking for this investigation. Secretary Coe was also instructed to attend the adjourned hearing before the Public Service Commission on the petition of the Kingston Consolidated Railway for an increase in the rate of 10c.

Kingston milk dealers and distributors held a meeting Friday night, the result of which is the information furnished to The Freeman that "a reduction of one cent a quart for milk in Kingston will take effect on Monday, quarts being 13 cents and pints 7½ cents. Sweet cream will be reduced from $1.20 to $1 per quart, or 25 cents per half pint. Both dairymen and dealers are much disturbed over the milk situation. Owing to the mild weather that has prevailed through the fall and so far in the winter, has resulted in a large increase in the production of milk, causing a reduced price to the dairymen and an unusual marketable surplus to the dealer. Many dairymen, in anticipation of higher prices in the winter, arranged the freshening of their cows to occur at that time. Still, cold weather will cause some shrink in the supply, but the unusually mild season has kept up the flow. Although the sale of liquid milk has greatly increased in Kingston during the past three months, it has not been sufficient to keep down the surplus. The difficulty in securing help in the care and distribution of milk every day in the year, together with the rapid increase in wages, the same as affects all business enterprises (even newspapers being confronted with it), is also a serious problem to the milk distributor. In Poughkeepsie the price of milk is still continued at 15 cents a quart, the dealers not seeing their way clear to making any reduction."

An analysis of actual conditions makes interesting comparison with the foregoing statement. While the price for quarts will be reduced to 13 cents, it will be noticed that the price for a quart when purchased in plant quantities will remain at 15 cents, the same as formerly.

The announcement that the mild weather has resulted in a large increase in production, causing a reduced price to the dairymen, will be interesting news to consumers and producers, who have been under the impression that the reduced price was due to the eating in the price which was established in New York city by the Sheffield Farms organization. Evidently Kingston has news which is not possessed by any other section of New York state.

The Sheffield Farms organization some time ago cut the price 20 cents per hundred pounds under the price of the Dairymen's League in order to hold its liquid milk trade in New York city. The League was compelled to meet this reduction, and in all parts of the state except among Kingston dealers the price reduction has been understood to be the result of such competition. As a result, the Dairymen's League has held its trade in liquid milk, and the producers also have been receiving more than they would under ordinary circumstances. The consumer in New York city and elsewhere also has benefited, even in Kingston.

Producers and consumers familiar with the milk situation also will be surprised at the announcement that the surplus is "unmarketable," because the butter and cheese market, for standard products, have remained firm, the condensed milk market has continued to be active, and ice cream manufacturers report brisk business instead of a falling off in trade.

Most Ulster county dairymen try to have their cows freshen at fairly equal intervals. Some who have winter dairies try to have their cows freshen during September and October, which naturally results in a surplus during October, and production is steady throughout the winter, and the big surplus comes during the spring when the cows freshen in back-country districts.

Dealers in Kingston have been quoted as saying that the price has had little or no effect on sales in this city, which do not fluctuate with the price. The consumption in the city remains about the same, and there has not been any noticeable change during the last three months. But few dealers have reported either trouble over the help question or marked increase in labor costs.

Information in regard to the Poughkeepsie price is lacking as to whether the 15 cents a quart refers to the same grade as supplied in Kingston or whether it refers to Grade A pasteurized.

At the annual meeting of the men's Bible class of the Fair Street Reformed Church Friday evening the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Louis S. Coe; first vice-president, George Schryver; second vice-president, Ernest Lofever; secretary, Abraham D. Relyea; treasurer, William C. Dutton. The retiring president, Mr. Roosa, appointed Ephraim Burke and Ray Hess to escort the new president to his chair. President Coe moved that the class give the retiring officers a rising vote of thanks which the members did with a hearty good will. The president appointed Fred Roosa, Henry Woolsey, Ira Woolsey, George Mains, William C. Cornell, William Eltinge, Ephraim Burke, James Millard, Ralph Glendinning and Ferris Davis as the committee to make all arrangements for a ladies' night dinner to be held, February 8. It looks as if the dinner will be bigger and better than ever this year as all the cooks in the class are on the committee.

Prince Mystery Never Solved

Why Did He Spend Money Lavishly Here to Establish Business and Then Suddenly Drop Out of Sight?

In the spring of 1883, nearly forty-one years ago, a very dapper stranger arrived in Kingston and engaged board at the Eagle Hotel on Main street. He stopped there several days and then secured board on Broadway near St. James street. Later he leased rooms on the second floor of the Voorhees building on Clinton avenue near Albany avenue, then occupied by Walter S. Frodenburgh who was at that time publisher of the Kingston Daily Leader. The stranger who gave his name as Walter Prince stated his purpose of coming to Kingston was to locate here permanently and publish a weekly story paper. For some time he had no definite idea on what line he would get up the weekly newspaper, but finally decided to follow the style of the New York Weekly, a story paper very popular then with a large circulation. He secured copies of directories of several cities and employed ten young women to mail circulars calling attention to his proposed publication and soliciting subscription for it, but the responses were few. Prince, with a man whom he said was his brother, then got busy preparing copy for the first issue and he made a contract with Mr. Frodenburgh to have the type set and print an edition of 10,000 copies. The work began on a Saturday morning, the agreement being that the edition be delivered on the Monday following. Prince left for New York on that Saturday promising to be back on Sunday following but he failed to return and no tidings have been received where he went or as to his whereabouts since. After waiting a few weeks Mr. Frodenburgh, under an attachment, seized office furniture owned by Prince to obtain pay for the work done in printing the paper called "The Kingston Weekly Prince," and this was the only bill the stranger left that was unsettled. During his stay at about six weeks in town Prince expended about $1,500 and he was a mystery to all as he spent money lavishly. On June 15, 1902, a New York newspaper in its Sunday edition published an article by William P. Hazen a former chief of the U. S. Secret Service, under the caption, "Counterfeiters I Have Caught," with pictures of criminals whom Chief Hazen had taken into custody. Men who had become acquainted with Walter Prince recognized immediately two of the pictures, which the writer had described as those of Mandel Howard, an Englishman and a civil engineer by profession, whom he had arrested through the aid of a pal, on a charge of piracy. They contended they were perfect facsimiles of Prince, the man of mystery, and were certain that Mandel Howard and Walter Prince were one and the same man. An incident in connection with Prince's stay in Kingston which told after the description of Howard and of his pictures appeared, seemed to verify their opinion. One day Prince and a Kingston man had gone to Barmum's circus, and while seated under the tent, Prince suddenly in a very excited manner and in a highly nervous state asked his companion if he knew a man who wore a large slouch hat and a long overcoat then passing in front of them. Nothing the man told him in suspense for a time, but finally told him that he knew the man well, who was J. Taylor Decker, then of Rosendale. Prince was greatly relieved when so informed and several days later remarked to the Kingston man who had accompanied him to the circus that he would have wagered considerable money that the man with the slouch hat to whom he had called attention was an English detective whom he knew. It was not long after that Prince disappeared and great speculation followed as to who he was. Spending at least $1,500, possibly, paying bills promptly and leaving office furniture of sufficient value to pay Mr. Frodenburgh for the work of printing the 10,000 copies of the weekly paper made his coming to Kingston more the mystery. This fact coupled with his sudden leaving Kingston without giving any address of his future whereabouts and the positive avowal of men who saw the pictures of Mandel Howard that they were pictures of Walter Prince the mystery man of Kingston who years before was deemed a solution of who the dapper stranger was. But why did Walter Prince come to Kingston and spend $1,500 in a few weeks, is still a mystery.

COATS OF SLIM LINES AND COLORED FABRICS

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

The coats one sees about town these midwinter days usually subscribe to slim lines and, as a type, are described in the sketches herewith. Natural lynx trim the first and leopard the second. Spotted furs are repeatedly seen, leopard and civet cat appearing as favorites. They are invariably applied on dark colors, although dove is often joined with lacquer red. But these furs lend themselves perfectly to the full length severe that form a popular complement of dyed furs. The increasing mode of the black and white coat is noted. Ermine is used with any of the new cloths as well as velvet.

Doesn't the coat worn is not a complicated matter to describe—that is, in so far as general style and cut are concerned. The words "straight lines, side closing, fur collar, cuffs and occasionally border," sum up the cut of nearly every coat.

But the uniformity is not as apparent because the variety of colors, both in fabrics and furs, is so extensive. In connection with the variety in the fur color is the variety of the pelts.

variant of the straightline coat, and one can count the number of black coats trimmed with leopard in this fashion at every occasion.

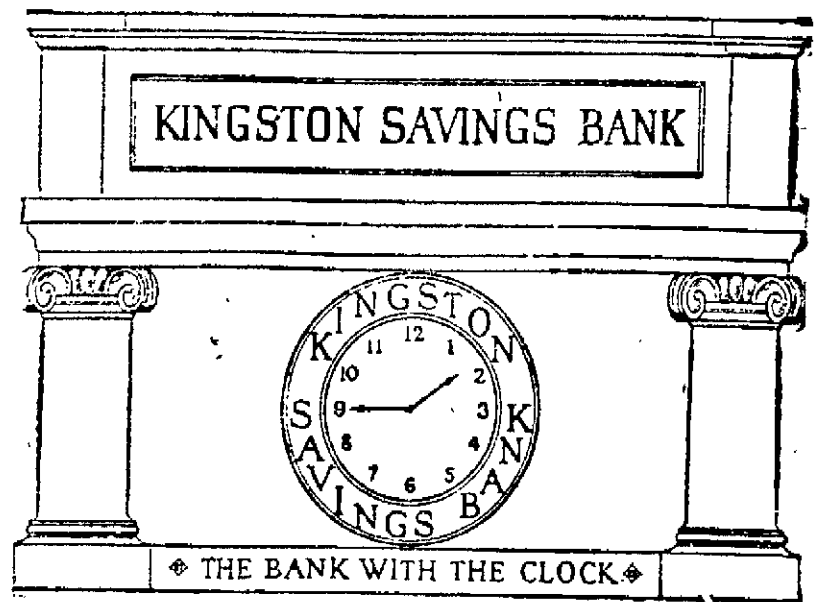

Caramel and cocoa colored cloths are generally with furs that agree in color, dyed squirrel or dyed fox serving this purpose. An attractive combination departed from this idea in the use of natural gray squirrel on the brown cloth.

The many varied combinations in which the black coat appears renders it in classification of the "different" coat. The pale tones of the natural furs add an attractive quality to the black coat that is not felt in the ac-

Decision on the colored coat appears to vacillate, for different occasions revealed contradictory expressions of the mode's approval. But a recent survey of "coated" crowds at various smart places showed that in contradiction to the neutral colors like dark brown and gray, the colored coat is much to the fore.

Nor is the meaning of "color" defined by scarlet or orange, or any of the high tones, but in more seemly shades softened to moss green, terra cotta or caramel. Dark bottle green is also noted, adding a new flavor to the list of dark street shades.

Charities Aid Annual Meeting

Admiral Higginson Unexpectedly Declines Presidency Any Longer—Resignation of Miss Davis Accepted.

The annual meeting of the Ulster County Branch of the State Charities Association on Friday afternoon was marked by the declaration of resignation of Miss Davis, and the election of Admiral Francis J. Higginson, U. S. N., retired, to accept re-election as president, and the resignation of Miss Martha Davis, the efficient county agent for dependent children, who goes to Illinois to accept a position of far greater responsibility.

Admiral Higginson's declination to serve as president for another year was based on his advancing age and the amount of time required to look after the duties of the Ulster County Branch. He had served for eight years, he said, and he believed it was time for someone else to assume the task. During his term as president he had tried to be responsible to every call to duty and his heart always would be in the work, whatever help he could give he would give willingly, but he felt unable to continue as head of the organization.

Higginson came as a complete surprise to the members and the matter of electing his successor was held open.

Other officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: The Hon. Martin Canine of Saugerties and Theodore Brink of Lake Katrine, vice presidents; Newton H. Fessenden, treasurer; Miss Florence Tappan, secretary.

A constitution under which the Ulster County Branch hereafter will operate, which was prepared by Newton H. Fessenden was adopted. It defines the powers and duties of officers and provides for four committees which will look after the detailed work of the Ulster County Branch. There will be a children's or case committee, of which the Rev. Dr. F. B. Seeley was elected chairman; a finance committee, of which Herbert Carl was elected chairman; a publicity committee, of which Miss Mary Haldane was elected chairman; and a committee on public institutions, of which Mrs. John Forsyth was elected chairman.

The resignation of Miss Martha Davis as county agent was submitted several months ago and at that time was laid on the table in the hope that Miss Davis would reconsider it and remain in Ulster county. Miss Davis stated that she had accepted a position tendered to her by the Illinois Children's Home and Aid Society of Chicago, and would leave Kingston Saturday. The resignation was accepted with regret.

Miss Davis has been the efficient county agent for dependent children for several years and has accomplished a vast amount of good in caring for children whose parents were unable or unwilling to provide them with suitable home surroundings. In her new position, Miss Davis will have charge of the work of the Chicago organization in the Southern Illinois branch, embracing a territory of thirty-four counties, and will have four assistants, each in executive charge of certain sections, all of whom will be under Miss Davis's supervision. Originally, the Illinois society operated in the city of Chicago but its work has been enlarged until it now embraces the entire state of Illinois, and it is proposed to introduce in the Southern Illinois Branch the same successful methods which have been in operation in New York state. Miss Davis's work has attracted wide attention and she has been widely sought after by organizations of other states. Her headquarters will be at Duquoin, Illinois.

Miss Davis, who is a native of Massachusetts, where her family has been eminent in social and political life for many years, became interested in social welfare work while a student at college, and took up a special course to fit her for engaging in the work. For five years before coming to Kingston she was engaged as home and school visitor in the foreign section of Boston, where she demonstrated her ability and sincere affection for the work in which she had engaged. For some years her family has been prominent in the society and official life of Washington, and she will visit with them before taking up her new duties in Illinois on January 21.

The matter of choosing a successor to Miss Davis was left open. A recommendation is expected from the agency department of the State Charities Aid Association within a few days and the appointment of a new agent will not be delayed. Meanwhile the office will remain open and be in charge of Miss Helen Green, who has been associated with Miss Davis in her work during the entire time Miss Davis has been in Ulster county.

YOUNG STRIBLING

Young Stribling has an appropriate name, for it could easily be mistaken for "Young Stripling," and the new boxing star from Georgia is only 17 years old. He must be a husky lad in truth, for the other day he cuffed veteran Dave Rosenberg about a Newark prize-fight in great style and knocked Brooklyn's middleweight laurels all the way down to Georgia, after which the southern boy was saluted not only as the conqueror of Me-Tigue and Rosenberg but as the future possible vanquisher of Dempsey himself. Georgia, once famed for its statesmen, its generals and its journalists, and later renowned for its star of the diamond, Ty Cobb, is now the proud possessor of a boy whose fists are his fortune.

Mothers are not supposed to favor prize fights even when their sons are only spectators, but "Ma" Stribling—as the accounts name her—always attends the bouts in which Young is a principal, looking on without shrinking and with proud and enduring confidence. The reporters say that she kisses her boy before he climbs into the ring and that her presence is an inspiration to him. "You were all right, darlin', all the time," was her fond greeting when he came out of the ring a victor at Newark. "I can't understand why women think boxing is dangerous," she is quoted. For her part she thinks football far more so. "They can't injure each other seriously. A knockout is temporary. Women think boxing is terrible. What's a little blood?" This is not unlike the spirit of the Lacedaemonian mother who bade her son return from war with his shield or dead upon it. Young Stribling would seem to inherit a firm will and a Spartan soul as well as the strength and the fists that make for victory.

THE CAREER OF MAGNUS

Magnus Johnson was elected to the Senate as a "dirt farmer" and since his arrival in Washington he seems to have been doing his very best to spread his fame as such. He even brought one of his cows with him and knowingly drew all eyes as he sought lodgings for her in a Washington garage without success. Then he issued a challenge to a milking contest, the Secretary of Agriculture accepted it, the contest was actually pulled off, and the judges ruled that in the five minutes allowed Secretary Davis had won by a half pint. Then Magnus spoke vaguely of indications that his cow had been tampered with, submitted that he was "out of practice," and said that his wife had done most of the milking back home anyhow. Nevertheless, with a view to further publicity, he announced a wood-chopping contest with another "dirt farmer" and once more he was beaten. This time he claimed that an unfair advantage had been taken of him, explaining that he was lured to repeat one of his own jokes and laughed so heartily that he got "winded," while the author of the trick, tight-lipped and carefully conserving his energies, went right on chopping and won.

Evidently Senator Magnus Johnson is as ready with an alibi as he is with a "dirt farmer" publicity, but what sort of an alibi will he produce when his half-baked measures of reform are turned down by a hard-headed and cold-blooded Senate? He is likely to discover that, after all, statesmanship is a serious business, requiring more than the art of the "good mixer" and mere expertness in slapping farmers on the back to the accompaniment of flattering speech.

Italy has filed a protest with the United States over the immigration quota allotted to her under the terms of the bill now being considered by the House Immigration Committee. What right has Italy to lodge a protest? She owes the United States about $2,000,000,000, for the eventual repayment of which she has been respectfully requested to make arrangements. She has not only not made any move to comply, but one of her leading statesmen intimates that she never will make repayment, and that there will be nothing on the Italian con case. If she does not file a protest, it is a moral obligation which Italy refuses to recognize. Why should she call upon the United States to extend a privilege which we are neither legally nor morally bound to grant? Italy would better clear her own debts before asking for aid of America.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont looks beyond Tony on her "parliament of man" and brotherhood of the world to the International Parliament of Women called for 1925, about which and the coming political status of her sex in America she is so enthusiastic that she is said to have taken a vow never to cast a ballot until she can vote for a woman for President of the United States.

New York's official hunt for medical and related quacks has resulted in the discovery of a correspondence school of dentistry. In these progressive times, perhaps, there are also correspondence schools in automobile driving and bootlegging.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act SELF-CENTERED.)

You are listening to an amusing monologue by a comedian when a burst of laughter near you attracts your attention. The audience laughs at the outburst, the comedian himself laughs and suggests to the audience that it might be good business to have the laughing party accompany him on his tour.

The said party continues the outbursts of laughter a frequent intervals thereafter, despite the fact that the attraction at the time on the stage may be one of the best of the time. What is the trouble? Hysteria!

And what is hysteria? No one has yet been able to describe it exactly nor to give its cause.

In the ordinary attack there seems to be three distinct stages.

First, an unusual excitement, loud talking, laughing, sometimes even crying.

Sometimes a sort of general complaining about the world in general, and the way she is treated and misunderstood.

This is followed by convulsive movements of various kinds, and bystanders often think that she is actually having a fit.

However, the outstanding feature is that despite all the writhing on the floor, and the convulsive movements, the patient never injures herself.

This is in marked contrast to a real fit or epileptic seizure.

This seizure is followed by extreme quietness and often a little feeling of shame for the outburst.

Now what causes a person to behave in this manner?

It has been found that they are usually people who are a bit flighty anyway. Emotional kind of folks.

Another very noticeable point is that they are usually prone to think about themselves a great deal. Not exactly selfish perhaps, but their interests and their feelings are always first in their thought.

Later investigators are of the opinion that it is the repression of certain emotions or desires that bring on the attacks.

It is really an affliction because they are usually cordially despised, or receive an overabundance of sympathy.

Are they often cured of this trouble?

Yes, and usually by thoughtful, kind and hard common sense on the part of the physician and other members of the family.

Not correcting them harshly, nor being too sympathetic, but by quiet logical reasoning and an appeal to their best selves.

When Irritability Increases and Weight Is Running Down

Weekly Health Talk
By Froude & Mac Kinnon, D's. C.

When there are numerous nerve openings in the spine that are narrowed and pinched by disturbed spinal alignment, there may not appear to be anything particularly the matter. The trouble is baffling, because the irritated nerves are gradually exhausting the body.

There are unexpected outbreaks of temper. There is loss of weight, and increasing nervousness. It used to be called "nervous breakdown," and the sufferer often was an invalid for years, but under our chiropractic health method, the condition is reached directly. With nerve ease restored, the disease disappears.

LOSS OF WEIGHT AND "NERVES" ARE OVERCOME

"I developed a nervousness which amounted to constant tremor. In one year I went from 120 to 145 pounds. I tried many doctors and many methods without results. Before I turned to chiropractic spinal adjustments. Under chiropractic, the shaking stopped. The nervousness disappeared. I began to gain weight, and became entirely well. I have not taken any adjustments for months now and I am enjoying perfect health."

Safety Day in Industry Jan. 16

The following is issued from the office of Bernard L. Shientag, state industrial commissioner:

New York state is the greatest industrial state in the union but her citizens can find little cause for pride in statistics which show that:

More than 1,000 workers are injured in her industrial establishments every working day in the year.

Five of these workers die of their injuries every working day in the year.

More than 300,000 workers are injured in her industrial establishments every year.

An average of more than 1,400 of these workers die of their injuries every year.

Each month shows an alarming increase in such accidents and deaths. November, 1923, recorded 192 deaths in industry, an increase of 32 over the previous month.

Employers of the state are now paying out to injured workers and the dependents of those killed in industry more than $17,000,000 in compensation each year.

As this compensation cost is passed along to the public every citizen has a vital interest in reducing the number of industrial deaths and accidents.

The industrial accident prevention campaign now in progress in this state was organized to bring home to both workers and employers the message of industrial safety.

Everybody can help in this humane movement.

Employers should provide necessary safety devices, employees should use them and citizens generally should urge their acquaintances in each class to strengthen the safety movement in every way.

Governor Alfred E. Smith has set aside Wednesday, January 16, 1924, as industrial safety day in this state.

As a good citizen it is your duty to help make the campaign a success.

Get in touch with State Industrial Commissioner Bernard L. Shientag, New York State Department of Labor, 124 East 28th Street, New York city, and learn how you can help. Telephone Madison Square 9500.

OLIVE BRIDGE.

Olive Bridge, Jan. 12.—Mr. and Mrs. Simon Merrihew and son Henry of Krumville and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Winchell were pleasantly entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Grover C. Winchell on January 6, the occasion being Mr. Winchell's birthday. The concluding feature was the cutting of the large birthday cake which contained a number of candles. All wished him many more birthdays to follow.

Grover C. Winchell visited Kingston on Tuesday as a director to the annual meeting of the Olive Fire Insurance Association.

Mrs. Henry Winchell is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. Annie Hyatt, at Kingston.

There is a possibility of the post office being removed from Hoyer's store. The surrounding territory is well served by the two store routes starting from there, and local people think a change to a rural route would be sure to make later deliveries.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Winchell on Monday evening were at Frank Rouse's where they listened to an excellent radio program. The main feature was an address by P. B. Sumner Pat Harrison of Mississippi at the Jackson Day celebration in Pittsburgh at the William Penn hotel.

EVENING
FAIRY TALE

PAM'S DOLL

Witty Witch, a delightful old lady, sat in her great armchair.

She Had Asked for a Second Cup.

There were children big and children small. There were children short and children tall. There were children of every shape and size. And children with blue, black, brown and green eyes.

This was the song Witty Witch sang to the Fairies and the Elves and the Brownies and the Gnomes who had come to call on her and to hear some of her stories.

Witty Witch had been delighted to see all her guests and she had run a story to tell them. She had been busy going around telling the truth about herself, for so often the truth was not told about her.

She wanted to let every one know how much she loved children and that she hoped they would love her. But now she was back home and it was a delightful surprise to have all of the Fairyland people coming to see her at once.

So she had been telling them stories as they dearly loved to hear Witty Witch's stories.

"But I haven't told the one about Pam's doll as yet," she said after she had finished singing the song about the children.

"Pam was one of the children with blue eyes. Blue eyes has Pam and rosy cheeks, too, and she is fat but not too fat. She has nice chubby legs and her best party dress is blue.

"And when she wears her best party dress she also wears a big blue hair ribbon which looks fetching. Indeed, on her fair hair.

"Well, Pam had been to a tea party at her grandmother's and grandfather's house and what a good time she had had.

"She had had cambric tea and it really had been most delicious," she had thought.

"In fact so pleased had she been with it that she had asked for a second cup and a second cup had been given to her.

"Then she had had very good sandwiches and a nice piece of cake.

"She had taken her doll to the party and her doll had said mamma and papa and had also walked, taking hold of Pam's hand.

"Pam was five, but the doll was only a year old and so Pam had brought the doll's crib along for in likelihood the doll might become sleepy.

"Sure enough! The doll had become sleepy and so Pam had put her in the crib at one end of the room.

"After the tea party was all over Pam went home, for by that time it was Pam's bedtime and as the afternoon had been quite exciting she really was tired even though she could have sat up a little longer.

"She had pretended that she was the doll and when some of the tea party guests had pressed her little chest, she had said, 'Mamma,' and 'Papa,' when they had pressed her back.

"And she had even said something when her right shoulder was pressed and when her left shoulder was pressed for she could do more than the doll could do.

"Well, the party was all over and every guest had gone. Pam's grandmother and grandfather began to put away the teacups and saucers so as to set the room to rights.

"Pam's grandfather said to Pam's grandmother, 'I will put the tea table over in the corner of the room, my dear. It is too heavy for you to carry.' And in truth, it was quite a heavy tea table. It had needed to be that for so much food had been on it for the party. Pam's grandmother and grandfather were very generous and always had most bountiful parties.

"Well, as Pam's grandfather put down the table in the corner of the room suddenly a voice cried out, 'Mamma, Mamma!'

"Oh, how Pam's grandfather jumped! And Pam's grandmother said, 'What could it have been? Is there a baby outside? No, it sounded as though in this room. Oh, what could it have been?'

"Pam's grandfather moved the table to the position he had put it in just as he had jumped and as he did so once more came the cries, 'Mamma, mamma, mamma, mamma!'

"And then they knew! It was Pam's doll which had been left behind and she had awakened in her crib when the leg of the table had made her cry out her cry of 'Mamma.' What a laugh there was about it and the doll hadn't been hurt so she didn't mind the laughter!"

GAS BUGGIES—Did You Ever Know It to Fail

The KITCHEN CABINET

(High Land, Western Newspaper Union)

The roses, the roses that lately blossomed red, Are wreathed in frosty bud and bloom of sparkling white instead; The sunflower's golden plunder of buccinating bees Has turned to weathered hostilities for hungry chickadees; The fountain's voice is silent, the dial cupped and blind, With winter stretching bleak before and sunny hours behind, And yet—like far, faint voices of March—awakened streams—I seem to catch the laughter of little garden dreams; That walk the tiny, drifted paths mid blue snow shadows dim, To linger by the wicket-gate and mounded fountain brim, That raise shy eyes of greeting where the crystal lilac stands, And guard frail bud-lips from lava within small fragrant hands.

—Martha Haskell Clark.

WHAT SHALL WE EAT?

In various parts of the country where deer abound, venison is now being served. The gamey, wild flavor of the meat is especially attractive to all lovers of the chase. Venison is one of the meats which should not be overcooked; it should be served rare to have it at its best.

Sautéed Venison Steaks.—Cut venison steaks into circular pieces and use the trimmings for making stock. Sauté the steaks in hot butter in a frying pan and serve with.

Cumberland Sauce.—Soak two tablespoonsful of citron cut into short matchlike pieces, two tablespoonsful of glacé cherries, one tablespoonful of sultana raisins, in orange juice for several hours. Drain and cook the fruit in a little fruit juice, add one-third of a cupful of currant jelly, and as soon as the jelly is dissolved add one and one-third cupfuls of brown sauce and two tablespoonsful of shredded almonds.

Roast Leg of Venison.—Lay a leg of venison in mild vinegar with one-fourth teaspoonful of ginger, one sliced onion, six cloves and ten peppercorns. Turn once and leave two days. Remove from the vinegar, wipe, season well, dredge with flour and roast as usual.

A fine roast, if one desires a good-sized one, is fresh ham. Roast until well done, seasoning well with a bit of garlic thrust into the meat, baste often and serve with apple sauce.

Mary Succeeds on Main Street

By LAURA MILLER

(By Laura Miller)

A CIVIL ENGINEER'S WIFE

Two pages she wrote about the pleasure of being a dweller on Main Street. Typewritten pages, too, closely spaced, on big sheets. As I read I wondered a bit why Mrs. Herlick, vocational expert, had suggested my writing her. Charming she undoubtedly is. A good citizen. A splendid wife. A woman other women delight to honor—for there is a whisper that if the General Federation of Women's Clubs ever elects a mountain president, it will be this same Kathryn Perham of Glendive, Mont.

But a woman of business? Then I found it. Tucked away as apparently the least important fact about her life was a modest sentence. "I have had training in civil engineering work."

Mrs. Perham wrote, "and since my marriage to a bridge and building contractor, I have been able to work side by side with him on blue prints, specifications, etc."

There aren't but 18 women civil engineers in all the United States. No wonder my vocational friend claims Mrs. W. T. Perham for Montana.

And when one can add to the personality and courage of a pioneer in such a "man's field," the feminine charm that has obviously made her a success as a helpmeet to her husband, then surely one has material for a first-class romance. Imagine a "best seller" with the unfinished bridge that was to be the engineer's masterpiece, endangered, then saved because the heroine could fire out stresses or boss a labor gang.

Pardon aside, Mrs. Perham is the letter of a happy woman. Particularly happy because her life is lived in a small town. She comments on the number of famous folk who "start careers in small places and establish themselves securely before seeking larger fields to conquer." And then she sums up her creed with this:

Let others reap the splendors, Lord, but give instead to me The heavenly round of living blent with small-town sympathy. The little, small-town sympathy that stands on neighbor feet From tiny lamplit houses down a maple-shaded street; That lends its strength on tear-dimmed ways its own bruised feet have trod. The little, small-town sympathy—the very soul of God.

LAPP'S SHOW QUARTERS CALLED A BUSY PLACE.

A correspondent writes as follows to the Billboard, the well known showman's publication:

"The writer recently was a visitor to the winter quarters of the American Exposition Shows at Ellenville, N. Y., and never in his experience has he seen such activity in winter quarters excepting with the big circuses.

"In the office were found M. J. Lapp, who is responsible for the outfit, and his charming wife, with their two assistants, who were busy with correspondence. In the repair shop were six men busily engaged in building show fronts and repairing and building new wagons, and there were complete mechanical devices for doing the work. In the paint shop were seven men at work, priming, finishing and striping and lettering the wagons that had already passed through the repair shop. In the riding device department five rides were in evidence and eleven men were at work on them, repairing, painting, decorating, etc. In the building where all the shows are stored the lower floor contains ten separate compartments, wherein the poles, stakes, ropes, platforms, etc., were all painted and placed as if ready to load at an hour's notice, while upstairs were also compartments for the canvas tops, etc. In the car shed the trainmaster and his crew were busy with repairing and repainting the train. And 'Hotel Lapp' is a two-story building, the lower floor containing the dining room, kitchen and reading and rest room, while on the upper floor are five private rooms for the staff and a large room for men's sleeping quarters. The entire plant is steam heated and electrically lighted, and it shows that expense has not been spared for equipment and the comfort of the people, and, above all, the watchword there seems to be 'action more than words.'

Modern Methods
for the Household

Beware Glare of Glossy Wall

Insidious Glare of Glossy Walls and Ceilings From Reflected Light Is Harmful to the Eyes.

The proofs are found on every hand that human nature is prone to run from one extreme to the other in everything. This is perhaps even more noticeable in the treatment of interior home interiors.

For instance, for generations, dark walls and ceilings were considered a part of the extremely dark and sombre homes of the times, although it is quite possible that the folks of the era prior to the general use of electrical cleaning methods and the smokeless, sootless electric lamp found the obscuring colors of practical value in other ways.

As little light was used the fact that certain dark finishes absorbed the most, if not all, the light which fell on them meant little to the homeowner. Then came electric illumination with its manifold advantages and immediately it became evident that light, cheerful walls, ceilings,
etc. were not only possible but most practical and cheerful and represented a real money-saving medium because a high percentage of the light falling on such light-finished walls was reflected.

That a good thing may be overdone has been proved by illumination experts who find that in a mistaken zeal for light, bright interiors
in homes which are very well lighted so far as the adequacy of the lighting equipment is concerned are also full of dangerous, eye-destroying glare, due to the excess reflection from light-colored glossy walls and ceilings.

From extensive tests the fact has been determined that where the brightness of the wall or ceilings is equal to, or greater than, the brightness of a piece of white paper lying on a table or desk, annoying glare will result.

In fact, a "wall brightness" of one-half that of the paper has been found unsatisfactory, and a brightness of 20 per cent apparently comfortable.

With the types of lighting units
used in most homes, the walls are not illuminated to intensities as high as those obtaining on desk or table tops and walls which reflect 50 per cent of the light which ordinarily strikes them should not produce discomfort.

The housewife has learned that electric light should be of the right intensity; that lamps should be shaded. Now she must learn that there is a safety limit in the use of light finishes in the home, because too bright walls, ceilings, etc., will produce results extremely harmful to the eyes of those who must spend considerable time therein.

Walls of mat finish are preferable; and those finished in buff, light green or gray reflect about the right amount of light and are becoming more and more popular as their advantages become better known.

PLAIN AND FANCY POPCORN BALLS AS MADE AT HOME

Cake, Soup and Cereal May Be Improved by Use of Popcorn.

You may think it "faddy" to suggest that salted, buttered popcorn would make a perfect substitute for croutons with soup, and especially with corn bisque, one of the best of uses for canned corn and a fine winter soup). But think it over, and if you have "food sense" you will "feel" that it would be good and look very attractive, besides.

Maple syrup and honey may be used instead of molasses, and there is a honey flavored molasses that would be admirable for this purpose.
"Tactac" is only popcorn candy
made by boiling a cupful of sugar,
one tablespoon of butter and three tablespoons of water to the hard-boil stage, and then stirring in three quarts of popped corn and making up into little rolls wrapped in waxed paper. This industrious popper could make three quarts out of one cup of corn in ten minutes, with only two "fillings."

Molasses Corn Balls.

One-half cup corn syrup.
One-half tablespoon vinegar.
One and a half tablespoons butter.

Six cups popped corn.
One-quarter teaspoon salt.
Mix the molasses and syrup with the vinegar and boil slowly to prevent burning to 270 degrees Fahr.

or until a bit dropped in cold water will become brittle. Remove from the fire and add the butter and pour over the popped corn. As soon as it has had time to cool slightly butter
the fingers and mold into balls and leave on a buttered slab or plate to cool.

If to this you add freshly grated cocoanut and peanuts you have a glorified confection which rivals the unsurpassable popcorn chop suet
sold along the boardwalks of the Jersey coast resorts.

The use of popcorn need not be confined to candies of the usually known sort made of the whole grains
After it has been put through a meat grinder a cake-like confection is obtained with the popcorn flavor.

Popcorn Macaroons.

Run sufficient freshly popped corn
through the food chopper to make one cupful and add an equal amount of blanched almonds that have been ground fine and then mashed to a paste with the addition of a little rosewater. Meanwhile whip the whites of three eggs until they will stand alone, fold in half a cupful of sugar and gradually blend with the corn and almond mixture. Drop from a spoon onto oiled or buttered paper and bake in a moderate oven for about twenty minutes. A small candied cherry may be pressed into the top of each macaroon before baking.

But with melted butter and salt

Perfect Popcorn American Dainty

An Efficiency Popper Will Yield Six
Cups of Corn in Less Than Five Minutes—Wide Variety of Ways to Use Popcorn.

There is no fragrance, no perfume
of Araby, more delicious than the delicate, subtle sweetness of popping corn. And now for those who have no open fire comes a commodious corn popper, one that will take half a cup of dried corn and give you back six cups of white popped corn, without fear of failure, in four minutes
over medium heat.

The method may vary, but experiment proved that unsurpassed results were obtained this way: put two tablespoons of butter into the popper,
let it melt slowly, and when thoroughly heated add the corn. Turn the handle slowly for four minutes,
and it's done.

Add one teaspoon of salt to six cups of corn just before taking from the stove. A moment longer gives a browner corn and a little more flavor.

This obviates the need of melting butter in another dish, gives an even distribution of the buttery, salty flavor, with no surplus to be transferred to the fingers in the eating. Another "aboriginal" virtue of this dish is that it necessitates eating with the fingers—always delightful to the true
savage in us, just like going barefoot!

The Popper's Proportions.
This perfect popper is a pot of iron

we are ready to back it against many a subtle and expensive treat. The price is about 3 cents for the six cups of corn. We know folks who scorn their food who never know when to stop eating popcorn. They are something like salted nuts. It will add to holiday fun, is less complicated to handle and leaves nothing to "clean up after," as when the children make candy. It goes with ginger ale and cider, nuts and apples
and cookies for an oldtime evening.

adapted to hold heat, and is about eight and a half inches across and four inches deep. The bottom is curved so that the popping corn drops back to center. Attached to the side is a convenient handle which has a slide mounted on it to hold the top in place. This cover has small holes stamped in it for the steam to escape and through it protrudes a rod with a five inch blade pivoted in the slot at the lower end. This blade just fits the curved bottom of the pan, and by turning the black knobbed handle constantly during the few minutes of heating the corn is kept moving and cannot burn and can but pop!

The speed and ease and perfection
of this "popping" will surely endear
the device to all lovers of parched cereals.

Local Styles in Popcorn.

Styles in eating popcorn seem to have marked sectional variations. Our Maine friends claim to have been brought up on "popcorn and milk"
for supper, claiming that it was a favorite with the children. And why not? Popcorn is food as well as fun, just as much as though the corn were in mush or bread. Bobbing about in milk, it should fascinate any child,
and buttered and salted slightly it might do away with the craving for sugar. Finish with an apple, and the God of Health would surely smile!

If you want to vary the dish (almost a pity, its own delicate special flavor is so good) popcorn balls and various confections are easily attained.

Starboard.

The word starboard is probably derived from steer board, and became identified with the side of the ship to the right of a person at the steer board and facing the bow. The word larboard was used to designate the side to the left. This term has been superseded by the word port, in order to avoid the confusion caused by the similarity of names.

A New Industrial Era!

In the old days before steam engines came into general use, water wheels were largely depended upon to furnish power for factories and mills. In this way, industrial settlements grew up along the banks of streams wherever the energy of falling water was available. Thus, about 100 years ago, Arnoldton (now Rifton), and Dashville got their start, and hundreds of people were employed in the mills of these communities on the Wallkill River.

With the introduction of the modern steam engine, and the drift of indus-tries to large centers of population, communities such as Dashville and Rifton suffered. Some of the older mills disappeared entirely, and even their loca-tion is forgotten. Others, still standing, are deserted, mute evidence of the change that affected not only these, but similar communities throughout the country.

Today we are on the threshold of a new era. Electric power, generated on a large scale at the most economical points, is transmitted over interconnect-ed transmission systems to be utilized by industries, perhaps a hundred miles or more away. This is tending to decentralize industry from the large centers of population—to bring them back to smaller communities where living and other conditions are better.

The old water wheels at Dashville and Rifton were puny affairs compared to the modern concrete dams and electrical generating stations that have re-cently been installed. The thousands of horse power generated there today is being sent over the wires to communities throughout the entire territory.

Citizens of the Central Hudson Valley, whose investments in the project made it possible, might well be proud of what has been achieved.

WHAT NOT TO DO WITH CARMOTOR

Worn Pinions and Differential Bearings Are Result of Poor Driving of Auto.

(By ERWIN GREER, President Great College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago.)

Rear axles today as a whole are mighty well made but they would give far better and longer service if the driving were properly done.

Quick engagement of the clutch, heavy overloads, even though for an instant, harsh application of brakes on rough roads, and lack of lubrication are some of the causes of worn pinions and differential bearings and worn gears.

Cause of Unpleasant Noises.

The average car has an adjustable driving pinion and differential unit. When new these bevel gears operate so that the gears mesh in one certain way. If a bearing wears and allows the pinion to change its mesh, or if the differential bearings wear and allow the whole unit to shift away from or toward the pinion, there is bound to be a noise produced and noise of an unpleasant character.

Gears Not Running True.

The bearings, if they are of the ball type with ball separators or cages, may show a breaking down of the cage. Pieces of the cage fall between the gear teeth, chipping them and causing more noise. The bearings themselves then allow more freedom of movement of the differential or pinion. It is absolutely necessary that the two gears remain in a fixed position, and as soon as there is an unusual noise from the axle, it is a warning that the gears are not running true or that there is solid matter between the teeth.

HAND SIGNALING BY DRIVERS NEGLECTED

Five Maneuvers Indicated by Arm Hung Out Over Side.

Relative to safe and sane automobile traffic control, it is hard to understand why such an important matter as hand signaling by drivers has been universally neglected. At present, if at all, the arm is hung limply over the side of the car and is supposed to indicate one of five maneuvers—right turn, left turn, complete turn, reverse or stop.

Any decently cautious driver, not being a mind reader, naturally slows down because the signal is not intelligible and the entire line of traffic is retarded correspondingly. If the signal of the leading car had been a definite one, there would be little need for such confusion. Adoption of an accepted signal code is the only solution to this difficulty and would not be a difficult thing to accomplish.

It is possible that the complete turn signal could be eliminated and with the aid of four others complete information transmitted to the car behind.

For instance—the left arm extended horizontally from the car with fist closed and one finger extended could indicate a left turn. The hand extended with palm forward could indicate a right turn. Hand extended with palm to the rear could indicate reverse. Arm raised up and down could indicate a stop.

At present, drivers employ signals of their own invention or use the same signal to indicate one of many moves—consequently, the signaling is nearly valueless. The fact that there is an attempt to use these signals shows how willing drivers would be to use a definite system if one were provided for them.

Hurtful to Battery:

Using impure water for refilling.

Using the starter for too long a time.

Using the horn frequently and with long blasts.

Neglecting to refill the battery at correct intervals.

Leaving lights burning brightly with the engine cut off.

Leaving the car parked for a long period with the lights burning.

Not watching ammeter gauge to see that the battery is charging correctly.

PLAN FOR CLEAR WINDSHIELD

Small Bottle of Alcohol and Glycerin and a Soft Cloth Is All That Is Needed.

There are many inquiries for something which will keep the windshield clear enough for careful driving during a storm. Only one who has sat behind a foggy windshield will know the feeling of an icy—almost helplessness—which the driver has.

There are a number of mixtures sold which are guaranteed to keep rain off the windshield, but a very simple one may be made by any driver and be carried in the door pocket for instant use.

A small bottle filled with alcohol and glycerin, half and half, and a soft cloth to apply it, are all that one needs. It is not necessary to paint the whole glass with this. Take a strip six or eight inches wide and the height of the windshield and coat it with the mixture and the rain or snow will not stick to that part.

ACCURATE AUTO-BRAKING DEVICE

W. F. Reynolds and R. F. Kebr, scientists of the bureau of standards, testing the braking efficiency of an automobile. The tests are conducted to determine the distance in which the automobile can be stopped when the brakes are applied.

FATHER DOOMS SON TO DIE IN CHAIR.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Anderson and their son, Harold.

It was the testimony of Albert Anderson, a tailor, of Brooklyn, N. Y., that doomed his own son, Harold Anderson, alias Arthur Lindsey, to die in the electric chair for the murder of Harry C. Moore, wealthy real estate man, whom he shot to death in a hold-up in Jersey City, N. J. On the witness stand the grief-stricken father admitted his son's hopefulness, had confessed the murder in his presence. "It's all right with me," the boy said in a hoarse voice. "I think you did right to stand by your oath. But it will be a terrible thing to live me." He is to die.

QUICK REPAIRS MADE ON HOTEL HEATING PLANT.

On Thursday morning, a serious fire broke out in the heating plant of the Hotel Elton, at Broadway and Railroad Avenue, and caused considerable damage. The fire was caused by a gas leak in the boiler, and the necessary repairs made without taking down the boiler. In less than twenty-four hours, the heating plant was performing its work as before the accident. The Stuyvesant Hotel has about the same kind of boiler, and the fire department is now working on the boiler of that hotel, from noon until 2 p. m. This is the first time since the accident that the boiler has been in operation.

France Sees Way Open Not to Pay

If Britain's Labor Government Cancels Russia's Debts, France Will Consider Hers Cancelled, Too.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. London, Jan. 12.—If Great Britain recognizes the Russian Soviet government, annulling the debts contracted by the old Imperialistic regime, France will consider her own war debts cancelled, said a Paris dispatch to the Daily Express today.

British newspapers today gave prominent display to a letter sent by Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the labor party, for former French Deputy Raymond, expressing a desire for Anglo-French unity in settling the problems which still agitate Europe.

The letter was an indication of the foreign policy that will be observed by the Laborites come into power in connection to the present Tory government of Premier Stanley Baldwin.

SCIENTISTS WARN AGAINST SHOE DYES

Several Cases of Aniline Poisoning Reported.

That shoes dyed with materials containing aniline or nitrobenzene will poison the wearer unless they are allowed to dry at least twenty-four hours before being worn, is pointed out in an article on "Poisoning From Shoe Dyes," written by Prof. A. S. Loevenhart, chairman of the department of pharmacology at the University of Wisconsin, and C. W. Muehlberger, state toxicologist, for the Chemical Bulletin.

During the last six months several cases of aniline poisoning due to the improper use of leather dyes have come to our attention," Doctor Loevenhart and Mr. Muehlberger write. "Similar cases involving nitrobenzene have been reported. In such instances the poison is absorbed through the skin when shoes are worn very soon after having been dyed."

A person affected by such shoe-dye poison becomes blue within a few hours after putting on a pair of freshly dyed shoes, and the blueness is particularly noticeable at the lips and fingernails. Gradually the whole face and body assume a bluish or purplish hue, which may be accompanied by nausea, dizziness and headache, and there is also a general physical weakness. The effect of the poison gradually disappears after the shoes are removed and in several days the skin assumes its normal color. That some less toxic solvent could be substituted for aniline or nitrobenzene, and be as satisfactory, is the writers' opinion.

"The present method of dyeing shoes is a constant menace to public health. There are shoe-shining parlors, which advertise 'Shoes Dyed While You Wait,' and there have been reports of cases where the dye was applied to shoes while they were being worn. Dyes containing aniline or nitrobenzene should be allowed to dry at least twenty-four hours before the shoes are worn."

"The danger of such poisoning might be reduced if the manufacturers were required to place warning labels and adequate directions upon the containers in which such dyes are sold. The only way the present method of dyeing shoes may be made safe and 'footproof' is by removing the highly dangerous poisons which are readily absorbed through the skin."

Machine Weaves Baskets.

There is a machine for weaving baskets which, it is claimed, has greatly simplified the making of wicker goods. The web is set up and made to revolve against stationary shuttles. The wicker is wrapped on spools at the side of the loom and threaded into it by means of a tension wheel. Before starting the loom on its rotary motion the stakes, or web, of the basket are placed in a permanent position.

As the machine revolves the warp is drawn from the spools on the side of the loom over the tension wheel and into the stationary shuttles. Just before the revolving stakes reach the shuttle star-shaped wheels pass them alternately to either side of the shuttle and thus interlace the warp. As the warp leaves the shuttle mechanical fingers grasp it and pull it down to its proper position. The fingers are operated by cams that permit them to pass behind the shuttles. With this machine a man can produce a perfect basket in 20 minutes.

Religious Experience.

Joseph was a solemn-eyed, spiritual-looking child. "Nurse," he said one day, leaving his blocks and laying his hand gently on her knee, "nurse, is this God's day?"

"No, dear," said the nurse, "this is not Sunday. It is Thursday."

"I'm so sorry," he said sadly, and went back to his blocks.

The next day and the next, in his serious manner, he asked the same question, and the nurse tearfully said to the cook, "That child is too good for this world."

On Sunday the question was repeated, and the nurse with a sob in her voice said: "Yes, Lambie, this is God's day."

"Then where is the funny paper?" he demanded—Harper's Magazine.

No Flowers, Please

A woman with a large London house used to arrange her own flowers and throw stalks and so on into an unused fireplace. She had, however, a most meticulous housemaid, who insisted on clearing the debris from the fireplace on every possible occasion.

After a time the mistress went to the country on a visit, and on her return found a notice pinned above the grate. "No flowers, by request."

Revised Daily.

"Shall I find every word in the dictionary, father?" asked Mollie.

"Oh, no, dear. New words are coined every day."

"Well, then, where shall I find the very last ones?" insisted Mollie.

"Ask your mother," said her father. "She has them every time."

Had Done Them All.

He was notoriously mean. One evening he went to see "Hamlet" at the local theater.

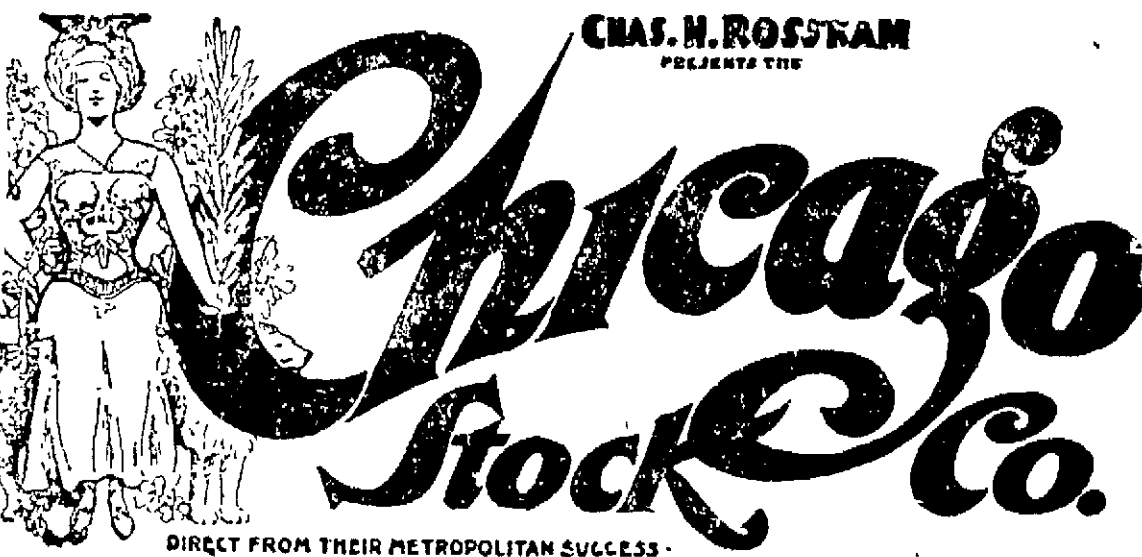

"It was just like a sermon," he said to a friend afterwards, "and it made me think I ought to be a more."

"Yes," said his friend, "and you've done a good few in your time, too."

The story of a Delightful Dumb-Bell

Constance Talmadge in DULCY

It's the voice with the smile that wins," said Dulcy, feeling the birth pangs of a new idea, as she tucked her graduation essay on "Always Wear a Smile" and her diploma under her arm and fared forth the world to conquer—or at least to set it right.

But, alas, Dulcy was a dumb-bell. Instead of a little Miss Fix-It she was a considerable Miss Mix-It. She muddled things and scrambled things, spilled the beans, threw a monkey-wrench into the works—and what not!

It's the what not that makes this picture a whizz—one you can't afford to miss. Here is romance in good measure, exciting romance of the home and the mart, house parties and big business—with Constance romping through, pulling bone-head plays that will keep you in an uproar. You'll say, "Hooray for 'Dulcy'!"

Radbourne Was Master of Detroit and Phillies

Charles (Old Moss) Radbourne, with a record of pitching 72 games and winning 37 of them back in 1884 (and this record is classed with the seven greatest achievements in baseball), was complete master of several teams in the National league during the days when he was supreme.

Philadelphia came into the National league in 1883 and didn't win a game from the "king" until the season of 1885 was well spent. A run of 18 consecutive victories was the record Radbourne had before the Phillies solved
his delivery.

Detroit had a ball team in the National league those days, and that aggregation, from May, 1883, until August, 1885, failed to win a game from the "Old Moss," losing 20 games during that stretch before beating him.

Final Period.

St. Mary's basketball squad went down to defeat at the hands of the Saugerties Five Friday evening at St. Mary's School Hall by the score of 20 to 14. Johnson won the scoring honors with seven points.

During the first half the Saints came out the better scoring 8 points to 4 for the visitors. With four points behind at the beginning of last period the Saugerties quieted down and passed the home team.

St. Mary's was only able to cage one field during the last period, this going to Sills. The winners caged five from the playground during the last session. Dolson made two pretty baskets from long range. Johnson also made two good shots from the floor. Cashie made the other field.

Matty Bence referred a good game, calling 21 fouls on the home club and 17 on Saugerties. The Saints caged 6 out of their number and the winners 9.

Ted Cox Made Captain

In spite of the fact that his football career ended early last season when his injured knee forced him to hobble around on crutches, Ted Cox has just been elected captain of the University of Minnesota team for 1924. Handicapped by the badly hurt joint, which made it necessary for him
to wear steel braces to protect it, which doctors said would probably cripple him for life, Cox, by bulldog determination, played in every conference game and has been heralded by many as one of the best linemen of the Middle West.

Large Hands Great Aid
to College Basketeers

Back fifteen years ago the New York club of the American league had a southern pitcher by the name of Harry Abels who could grab a ball in his left hand and completely envelop the same.
Abels was a pitching curiosity. Large hands are supposed to be a decided asset to a baseball pitcher since they enable him to get a much better grip on the ball. A majority of the star pitchers in the majors have big hands.
It failed to work in Abels' case, however, as his stay in the majors was of short duration. He had plenty of stuff, but lacked control.

For years "Horse" Haggerty, star center of the New York Celtics, has been one of the curiosities of the basketball sport because of the way he can manipulate a basketball. A big pair of hands makes it possible for him to do all kinds of peculiar stunts with the ball to the embarrassment of the opposition.

Now comes a rival for Haggerty in the person of a college athlete, Charles Blicking, a lanky freshman at Wittenberg. With one hand Blicking can hold a basketball at arm's length. If you think it is easy, borrow a basketball and try it.

Shelton Lejeune Holds Ball-Throwing Record

Long distance throwing of a baseball is recorded to be 426 feet 9 1/4 inches, made by Shelton Lejeune at Cincinnati, October 12, 1910. There is a record in throwing a cricket ball 420 feet. The maker of this record was a black lad whom they called Billy the Aborigine, who possessed a wonderful arm for throwing. It was noticed by Englishmen who resided at Peak Downs, South Africa, that Billy could throw a ball in from the remote parts of the large cricket grounds and do it easily. Billy was induced to throw for a record. The previous record in throwing a cricket ball was 391 feet, on December 19, 1872. With conditions correct, that is, no wind to help or retard, this smoke took three throws, all of which went over 400 feet, the best one measuring 420 feet. This stood as a record until Lejeune wined it out.

Hold Opposition Scoreless in Opening Session—Corregan Takes Scoring Honors—Duso Honors If Team Keeps Good Work.

Friday night at the local high school's court the local high school's basketball team swamped Port Jervis by a 33 to 9 score. The game was never in danger for Kingston,
the score at the end of the first half being 17 to 0. In the first half the locals guarded closely and the visitors were unable to break through the defense. The pass work of the locals was again the shining light of the game. Vogt played a stellar game at center, getting most of the tap offs. Corregan was the scoring ace for the locals, dropping five from the field and one from the 15 foot mark. Captain Schmidt was second, with two from the field and three from the fifteen foot mark. Schmidt had a hard time finding the basket
from the fifteen foot mark, missing seven successive tries. Stock and McLane played well at the guard positions, making two points each and holding their men to one point and two points, respectively. Merine, who played for a little over a quarter, showed some good stuff, making five points.

Although the score would indicate a slow game, it was quite the contrary. The ball was always in motion, in the hands of the locals most of the time. Referee Wood did a good job, calling 29 fouls during the game, Kingston having 9 called and Poughkeepsie 20.

The locals are showing their su-premacny over the other league teams during every game they play and are well on their way to taking the league honor. The scoring and line-

by scoring 350 points, recently another record. He is twenty
